The miracle of St. Roz -- light a candle, lose a pound!

LOGLINE

The arrival of a statue with miraculous weight loss powers turns a small poor church into an international sensation.

.....

SHORT

A statue with miraculous weight loss powers arrives unexpectedly in a poor parish church. "If you light a candle, you lose a pound" As word spreads, women arrive from all over the world. As the weight loss industry goes into free fall, the pressure mounts to rid the world of this troublesome saint.

MEDIUM

A statue with miraculous weight-loss powers arrives unexpectedly in a poor parish church. Local women discover if you light a candle, you lose a pound. Judy, the overweight daughter of the weight-loss queen Minnie Barr, discovers with delight the statue's powers. The pounds shed off her. As word of this miracle spreads, women arrive from all over the world. Money pours into the church. The statue is an international sensation. The press goes crazy. But Minnie's empire and the rest of the weight-loss industry go into free-fall as women abandon weight-loss and exercise clubs. Church and industry leaders conspire to remove the statue. An epic cat and mouse struggle ensues between the forces that want to protect St. Roz and those who are threatened by her.

DIRECTOR'S STATEMENT

Gregory Sheppard

Maryann Kovalski's screenplay is a quirky, funny and very unusual story. It poked gentle fun at the church, the world's obsession with weight loss and the human need for quick fix. The premise-miracle weight loss by praying to a statue!

It was an overly ambitious script with a large cast and many locations. Some days we thought we had bitten off more than we could chew.

Fighting lack of money, too little time and too many locations we nonetheless got it made.

Nervously we submitted it to the film festivals. What a relief and joy it was to get some recognition, and most importantly lots of laughter from the audiences.

Hope you enjoy it and have a few laughs too.

WRITER'S STATEMENT

Maryann Kovalski

Since the day I met a scale, I've had an on-again, off-again relationship with about twenty-five pounds. The ride has shown me many worlds. I've been the girl with the hot body in the bikini at the beach and I've been admired with the classic line, "You look like a woman who enjoys her food."

Ravenous on yet another 'healthy eating plan', it occurred to me that Catholics have a saint for every possible affliction- except fat. If ever there was a void...

When I told my mother my idea for St. Roz she didn't smile. She said, "God will punish you for these ideas you get. But meanwhile, write that one down. It's funny."

PRODUCER'S STATEMENT

Michael Lampert & Gregory Sheppard

This wonderful script was sitting around (as wonderful scripts so often do) our offices as we continued to produce television shows for twenty-eight countries around the world. After threatening ourselves and others that we would break out into the theatrical movie universe, we decided to take this wonderful script and do just that! It was an amazing adventure, full of the usual ups and downs, but we finally put the script on the screen. We hope you enjoy this light-hearted comedy about weight-loss!

MARYANN KOVALSKI

Writer

St. Roz screenwriter Maryann Kovalski was born and raised in the Bronx, which she believes gave her an early appreciation of the absurd. She attended parochial schools, further honing it, until she enrolled in the School of Visual Arts in Manhattan studying animation and illustration, where she learned to put it down on paper.

She worked as a free-lance illustrator before embarking on a two-year stay in Montreal that lasted over thirty years in Canada. During those years, she worked as an advertising art director and an illustrator, which evolved into a career as a children's book author/illustrator of over thirty books. During this time she worked on several screenplays.

"The picture book bears a similarity to a movie in that both are amalgams of word and picture and are similarly paced, though of course the picture book is much shorter," she says. Having the opportunity to do the animated titles was also a delight. "It was wonderful to be able to come full circle and finally get an animation job after all these years."
